

what complexity of effective model does the physics require? (train/test split by whole states)

